

It's time for Transit Companies to stop worrying about Public Perception and start focusing on PUBLIC PROTECTION.

Bus and rail operators are the frontline Transit Company employees that the public sees and the companies don't want wearing a mask because of the "public perception."

Just like the transit workers behind the scenes and out of public view who clean and sanitize buses and rail cars, they should have the choice to wear a mask, if they wish, as an additional layer of protection against COVID-19!
